Introduction

With the aim of promoting the breadth of democracy and advancing civil work, over the past 11 years, the PAY Foundation, adhering to the applicable laws of the Kurdistan Region, has monitored and evaluated the Kurdistan Parliament's activities as one of its core functions. Within this framework, and with the support of the American National Endowment for Democracy (NED), we have published 30 reports in this field to date.

Our current report, titled "Monitoring and Evaluation Report on the Kurdistan Parliament Activities in the Fifth Term," specifically assesses the performance and activities of all parliamentarians who served during this term. Each member's work has been individually evaluated over the four and a half years of the parliamentary term (from November 6, 2018, to May 30, 2023). Our team monitored all parliamentarians during this period, recording and categorizing their activities, which are presented in tables. This allows us to determine the extent to which they fulfilled their legal duties, including how often they attended parliamentary sessions and committee meetings, participated in discussions, the duration of their speeches, and how many legislative proposals and resolutions they prepared and debated. We also assessed how effectively they exercised oversight over the executive branch and conducted inquiries.

Furthermore, we evaluated the performance of the members of the Presidium. To compile this information, we relied on data and information provided by the Parliament itself. Therefore, we have not included any of our own commentary in the report, except for presenting factual data obtained from the official sources of the Parliament. (This excludes any sessions that were not held or instances where the Presidium canceled live broadcasts for specific reasons and did not publish them.)

Our objective at PAY is to support the Parliament as the highest legal institution in the country by publishing clear and detailed information about all parliamentarians, their performance, and activities, thereby providing stakeholders with a voice. This aims to distinguish active parliamentarians from inactive ones and create civil pressure on those who have not fulfilled their duties as required. In essence, this project seeks to connect parliamentarians with voters, strengthening the relationship between public opinion and this vital national institution.

Now that the call for elections for the sixth parliamentary term has begun, the reason for publishing this report is to remind voters about the representatives they elected in the previous term, encouraging them to reflect on the performance and activities of each one. This allows voters to correct any mistakes made in previous elections. Therefore, it is incumbent upon voters to strive for a stronger Parliament by selecting the best candidates from various lists based on competence and merit, rather than on emotions, partisan affiliations, tribalism, or nepotism. Parliamentarians should also understand that when they take the constitutional oath, they will be monitored by voters and civil society Foundations regarding their performance and activities. Therefore, they must uphold the promises they made to the citizens. If they do not see themselves capable, they should not enter the process.

For this important institution to hold its rightful place and fulfill its legal duties, it must transform from being an appendage of political parties into a decisive legal and political center. This requires political parties to nominate strong and decisive individuals during elections and send them to Parliament.

The Parliament should transition from being a center of privilege and benefits to one focused on fulfilling duties and providing public service. This can be achieved if the Parliament takes the initiative to adjust the salaries of parliamentarians to be equivalent to those of retired parliamentarians, because the current salaries are based on a period when the Region's economic situation was strong. Now that the economic situation is not favorable, these salaries place a burden on the budget. The high salaries have also led political parties to view parliamentary seats as privileges rather than duties, meaning they nominate individuals for personal gain rather than public service.

It is concerning that this important institution has weakened term after term, hour after hour, losing credibility. The reason is that the executive authority has shown disregard for it. Many laws have not been implemented, resolutions have not been enforced, the executive authority ignores it, and invitations and requests have gone unanswered. In the past two cabinets, no budget bill was sent! Not only that, but the Parliament itself has violated its own laws!

Therefore, at the PAY Foundation, we will make every effort to help bring about a Parliament that can enact good laws and exercise strong oversight over the executive authorities. A Parliament that can play its role in democratizing the foundations of democracy and establishing balance among the various strata and segments of society.

Through this project, the PAY Foundation wishes to send a message to the elite in power that every effort must be made to strengthen the highest institution in the Region. We also aim to provide more transparency to voters and citizens about the actions and positions of those representatives they elected.

Composition of the Kurdistan Parliament

The Kurdistan Parliament, which held its first elections on May 19, 1992, has conducted five parliamentary terms up to now. Generally, it has several unique characteristics, such as elections never being held on schedule. For instance, in this term, according to the law, elections for the sixth term should have been conducted in September 2022. However, due to political party disputes, they were postponed. Consequently, in the session held on October 9, 2022, the Parliament extended its term by one year. Additionally, most laws are not implemented. Term after term, the Parliament has become weaker because political parties send the least influential decision-makers to it. The executive authority does not implement the laws and ignores its decisions. In national and decisive matters, the Parliament has the least visible role, and political parties never refer back to this high institution for discussion and resolution.

Specifically, the features of this term reveal that it has passed the fewest laws, and those that were passed are of low quality. Most have not yet been implemented, and the Parliament itself remains silent. It has conducted minimal oversight of the government, and even the executive authority ignores its invitations and requests. During its term, neither this session nor the previous one received the regional budget proposal, and for 11 years, a budget law has not been approved in the region. All independent institutions under the Parliament, such as the Independent Human Rights Commission, the Financial Audit Bureau, the Integrity Commission, and the Election and Referendum Commission, have numerous legal violations. Currently, some of them have expired chairpersons and councils, and in all these shortcomings, the Parliament is responsible but remains silent. Moreover, the Parliamentary Presidium, during sessions and in daily decisions related to the Parliament, has committed the most legal violations and procedural breaches. Therefore, most meetings have ended in disputes. These are among many other weaknesses and shortcomings.

To better understand the Parliament as an institution and to evaluate its specific activities, by focusing on the work and activities of its members during a four-and-a-half-year term, we thought it best to first present its composition (members of the Presidium and parliamentarians), which includes the national, religious, and gender composition of the members, as well as their ages, educational qualifications, and professions.

Subsequently, in several other tables, we outline the political affiliations and factions of each parliamentarian and their membership in specialized committees. We discuss the number of votes each member received and assess the level of their activity in parliamentary sessions and committee meetings, including attendance, participation, and discussions. We also show the percentage of each member's participation in preparing legislative projects, debating proposed laws, questioning, requesting urgent topics to be discussed, presenting proposals, and directing inquiries.

In addition, in several other tables, we address the importance members place on communication, showing to what extent they have provided citizens with their phone numbers, email addresses, and social media accounts on the Parliament's official website.

Gender Composition of Parliament Members in the Fifth Term

Gender	Number	%
Male	84	68.29
Female	39	31.70
Total	123	100%

In Table (1), it is evident that during the fifth term of the Kurdistan Parliament, 123 individuals took the constitutional oath. The highest gender representation among members in this term is male, reaching 68.29%, followed by female at 31.70%. This can be attributed to the fact that not only in the Kurdistan Parliament but also in most high-ranking positions, the male gender is more prevalent. This situation is reflected in the Parliament as well. The percentage for females shown in the table is due to the allocation of quota seats for women. Otherwise, given the prevailing political climate, patriarchal culture, and male-dominated mentality in society, this percentage would not have manifested in this way, and the male percentage would have been much higher.

Percentage Composition of the Nationalities of Parliament Members in the Fifth Term

The nation	Number	%
Kurd	111	90.24
Chaldean, Syriac, Assyrian	5	4.06
Turkmen	6	4.87
Armenian	1	0.81
Total	123	100

In Table (2), it is evident that the highest percentage of members of the Kurdistan Parliament are of Kurdish nationality, reaching 90.24%. Following that, other nationalities such as Chaldean, Syriac, Assyrian, Turkmen, and Armenian are represented with varying percentages. This high percentage of Kurdish nationality can be attributed to the fact that most residents of the Kurdistan Region are Kurds. Alongside them, other nationalities live in the cities of the Kurdistan Region, which has led to several parliamentary seats being allocated to them in the Kurdistan Parliament.

Percentage Composition of the Religious Affiliations of Parliament Members in the Fifth Term

Religion	Number	%
Muslim	115	93.49
Christian	6	4.87
Yazidi	1	0.81
Kakaey	1	0.81
Total	123	100

It is shown that the highest percentage of religious affiliation among members of the Kurdistan Parliament is Muslim, reaching 93.49%. Next are religions such as Christian, Yazidi, and Kakai, each with varying percentages. Although the percentages are small, this indicates that alongside Islam, citizens of other religions also reside in the Kurdistan Region.

The highest percentage of educational qualifications among In Table (4), it is evident that members of the Kurdistan Parliament is a Bachelor's degree, reaching 47.15%. This is a notably high percentage, with more than half of the parliament members holding this degree. Following this is the Master's degree, which ranks second at 17.88%. Other degrees follow, each with different percentages

41.	Specialization Not Specified	22	17.88
Total		123	100 %

In Table (5), it is evident that the highest percentage of specializations among members of the Kurdistan Parliament is in Law, reaching 21.95%. This might be because political parties intended to send experts in law to the Parliament, considering that the Parliament is a center for legislation and decision-making. The next highest specialization is Media and Communication, followed by other fields.

However, despite the high number of members with a background in law within the Parliament, there are also many permanent legal advisors and a contracted board of advisors. Yet, from a legal standpoint, the Parliament remains weak, and the laws it produces are often flawed and incomplete. Therefore, many of them require amendments shortly after being passed. Additionally, the Parliament itself committed several legal violations during this period.

Total	123	100

In Table (6), it is shown that the highest percentage of Kurdistan Parliament members were born between the years 1976 and 1980, reaching 20.32%. Other age groups follow, each with varying percentages. These statistics suggest that political parties have made efforts to promote younger individuals by nominating them as candidates.

Table (7)

Subject	Number	%
Email not found	99	80.48
Email Found	24	19.51
Total	123	100

In Table (7), it is shown that 99 parliament members do not have their email addresses listed, which constitutes 80.48% of the total members. In contrast, 24 members have their email addresses registered on the website, making up 19.51%.

These results were obtained from data on the official website of the Parliament. Therefore, as the PAY Foundation, we have acquired the email addresses of most members and published them on the PAY's Foundation website. Not only that, but we have also provided much more information about each of the parliament members.

The absence of members' email addresses on the official Parliament website reflects negligence and a lack of seriousness from the parliamentarians, indicating that they do not give importance to allowing citizens and voters to contact them.

These results were obtained from data on the official website of the Parliament. Therefore, we have recorded these details and many other pieces of information on the PAY's Foundation website.

In Table (9), it is shown that among the elected candidates who took the constitutional oath in Parliament, Ali Hama Saleh from the Gorrان (Change) faction received the highest number of votes, totaling 91,934. Following him is Hemin Ahmad Hama Saleh from the KDP (Kurdistan Democratic Party) faction, who received 47,436 votes.

It is also evident from the table that Himdad Sabah Bilal from the Turkmen Front faction, with 138 votes, and Sara Dilshad Bakir from the Turkmen Development faction, with 194 votes, obtained the least number of votes.

One of the reasons for this disparity in vote counts is that political parties sometimes nominate certain individuals for elections merely to gather votes, and after the elections, these individuals do not even attend Parliament.

During the fifth term of the Parliament, which lasted four years, six months, and twenty-four days, the Parliament held 116 sessions. In 74 of these sessions, absences were recorded, and in 42 sessions, attendance was not recorded or the Parliament did not announce it. As shown in Table (11), one member of parliament had the highest number of absences from the Kurdistan Parliament sessions, being absent 31 times out of a total of 74 sessions. Subsequently, the numbers decrease for other members. Our review of the total sessions revealed that in many sessions, absences were not read out, indicating that the actual percentage is likely higher.

In Table (12), it is shown that members of parliament were absent a total of 804 times from committee meetings. Among them, one parliamentarian had the highest number of absences from committee meetings, being absent 23 times from the Kurdistan Parliament's committee meetings. Following that, the numbers for other members decrease proportionally, reaching the point where three parliamentarians participated in all committee meetings without any absences.

These data were all obtained from the Parliament's sessions. The actual numbers might be higher because attendance records for many committee meetings were not read aloud. Often, the Parliamentary Presidency overlooked reading out members' attendance. Additionally, in many meetings, a member's name was read as being on leave when they were actually boycotting the Parliament. There were also instances where a parliamentarian's name was read out in a committee meeting despite them not being a member of that committee in any capacity.

In Table (13), it is evident that the total number of speeches made by members during parliamentary sessions amounts to 8,881 times. Within this number, only one parliamentarian participated the most in speeches, speaking 275 times. Subsequently, the numbers decrease for other members. While frequent participation in speeches during sessions doesn't always indicate the effectiveness of members, it does reflect their stance and activity level, showing on what topics and when they speak and what they say.

Conclusion

At the end of writing this report, which discusses the work and activities of the members during the fifth term of the Kurdistan Parliament, from November 6, 2018, to May 30, 2023, which amounts to four years, six months, and twenty-four days, we have reached the following results:

First: Only 116 parliamentary sessions were held, consisting of 110 regular sessions and 6 extraordinary sessions. Of these, 108 sessions were conducted during the legal term of the Parliament, and 8 sessions were held after the illegal extension of the term.

Second: During this period, the Parliament conducted the first reading for 85 draft and proposed laws. Among them, 28 draft laws were sent by the executive authority (the Presidency of the Region, the Council of Ministers, the Judiciary Council), and 57 proposed laws were presented by the members.

Third: Regarding the interventions of members on the proposed laws, during the fifth term of the Kurdistan Parliament, they made a total of 1,435 interventions on the proposed laws. One member of Parliament made the highest number of interventions on proposed laws, which was 32 proposed laws. After that, the numbers decrease proportionally, reaching the point where two members of Parliament made interventions on only one proposed law.

Fifth: The parliamentary committees, which number 19 committees, during the term of the fifth session, over a period of four years, six months, and twenty-four days, held only 945 meetings.

Sixth: The activities of the Parliamentary Presidency during the fifth term included: welcoming 481 personalities, conducting 77 visits, participating in 435 activities, and publishing 427 messages, which consisted of 234 congratulatory messages, 122 condolence messages, and 58 sympathy messages... each as follows:

1. Speaker of Parliament (Vala Farid Ibrahim): During her tenure as Speaker of Parliament, she participated in all sessions, welcomed 8 personalities, did not make any visits, participated in 17 activities, and published 1 message, which was a condolence message.

2. Speaker of Parliament (Rewaz Fayaq Hussein): During the fifth term, she did not participate in 9 sessions, welcomed 197 personalities, conducted 19 visits, participated in 141 activities, and published 190 messages, which consisted of 97 congratulatory messages, 60 condolence messages, 26 sympathy messages, 2 support messages, 3 thank-you messages, and 2 condemnation messages.

3. The Deputy Speaker of Parliament during the fifth term did not attend (2) sessions, welcomed (238) personalities, conducted (53) visits, participated in (161) activities, and published (159) messages, consisting of (91) congratulatory messages, (43) condolence messages, (22) sympathy messages, (1) condemnation message, and (2) concern messages.

4. The Secretary of Parliament during the fifth term welcomed (38) personalities, made (5) visits, participated in (116) activities, and published (77) messages, which include (46) congratulatory messages, (18) condolence messages, (10) sympathy messages, (1) thank-you message, (1) condemnation message, and (1) concern message.

Eighth: It is unknown how many questions members have directed to the government because neither the Parliamentary Presidency provides the information nor do the factions respond to our inquiries. However, according to statistics published by the Parliamentary Presidency at the end of the autumn term, it stated that (499) members' questions remained unanswered.

Ninth: Regarding the questioning of Council of Ministers' members by parliamentarians, (16) parliament members submitted motions for questioning (3) times, then (3) parliament members submitted such motions (2) times, and (12) parliament members submitted motions (1) time. Additionally, (89) parliament members did not submit any motions for questioning. These motions were based on Articles (68, 69, 70) of the Parliament's internal regulations for the purpose of questioning members of the Council of Ministers.

Tenth: Concerning the introduction of general topics for discussion in parliamentary sessions or adding items to the agenda, among the motions submitted and presented by members, only (1) parliament member submitted the most motions, totaling (47). Subsequently, the number of submissions decreases until reaching (12) parliament members who did not submit any motions to add or specify any topic for the work program and discussion.

Eleventh: During the fifth term of the Kurdistan Parliament, (13) parliament members presented (16) proposals during sessions, where (3) members each presented proposals (2) times, and (10) parliament members each presented one proposal.

Twelfth: During the fifth term of the Kurdistan Parliament, (14) parliament members resigned from parliamentary work. Some assumed high governmental positions, some resigned due to obstructions and issues created for them, and others resigned because the parliamentary term had ended.

Thirteenth: Six (6) parliament members illegally became members of the Kurdistan Parliament during the fifth term and took the constitutional oath after (6/11/2022). These include (2) parliamentarians from the Gorran Movement faction, (2) from the Islamic Movement faction, (1) parliamentarian from the New Generation faction, and (1) parliamentarian from the Yekgirtu faction under the name (Independent), who took the constitutional oath in the Kurdistan Parliament hall.

Fourteenth: Regarding the composition of Parliament members, it is as follows:

1. The highest percentage of Kurdistan Parliament members in the fifth term are of the male gender, reaching (68.29%), compared to the female gender, which is significantly lower at (31.70%).

2. The majority nationality of the members is Kurdish, reaching (90.24%), followed by other nationalities such as Chaldean Syriac Assyrian, Turkmen, and Armenian, each with varying percentages.

3. The predominant religion among members is Muslim, constituting (93.49%), followed by other religions like Christianity, Yazidism, and Kakaism with different percentages.

4. The highest educational qualification among members is a Bachelor's degree, which is significantly high and accounts for nearly half of the Parliament members, reaching (47.15%). Following this is the Master's degree, and then other degrees.

5. The most common specialization among members is Law, reaching (21.95%), followed by specializations like Media, Religious Studies, Management and Administration, Health, History, English Language, International Relations, etc., each holding a certain percentage, except for some unspecified specializations.

6. The most common birth years of members fall between (1976 – 1980), reaching (20.32%), with other age groups following, each with different percentages. These statistics indicate that political parties have made efforts to promote younger individuals and nominate them.

Fifteenth: Regarding the methods for citizens to contact members through the official Parliament website:

1. A large number of members do not have email addresses, or if they do, they are not registered on the official Parliament website, totaling (99) members, which is (80.48%).

2. Many members do not have their social media accounts registered on the Parliament's website, numbering (86) members (69.91%), while (37) members have their social media accounts registered (30.08%).

Sixteenth: Regarding the votes obtained by Parliament members, Ali Hama Saleh from the Gorran faction received the highest number of votes, totaling (91,934). Following him is Hemin Ahmed Hawrami from the KDP faction, who received (47,436) votes. Himdad Sabah Bilal from the Turkmen Front faction received the lowest number of votes, totaling (138).

Seventeenth: Members' attendance in sessions is as follows:

1. One parliament member had the highest number of absences from Kurdistan Parliament sessions, being absent (31) times out of the total sessions in the fifth term, where these absences were recorded in (74) parliamentary sessions. Subsequently, the numbers decrease for other members. Our review revealed that in many sessions, absences were not read out, indicating that the actual percentage is much higher.

2. In committee meetings, members were absent a total of (804) times. Among them, one parliamentarian had the highest number of absences from committee meetings, being absent (23) times. After that, the numbers decrease proportionally, reaching the point where (19) parliamentarians attended all committee meetings without any absences. These data were obtained from parliamentary sessions, and the actual number may be higher because attendance records for many committee meetings were not read aloud.

Eighteenth: Regarding members' participation in speeches during parliamentary sessions:

1. The total number of speeches made by members during parliamentary sessions is (8,881). Within this number, only one parliamentarian participated the most, speaking (275) times. Subsequently, the numbers decrease for other members, down to a parliamentarian who did not make any speech. While frequent participation in speeches does not always indicate effectiveness, it reflects members' stances and activity levels, showing on which topics they speak and what they say.

2. The total speaking time of Kurdistan Parliament members during sessions amounted to (160 hours, 40 minutes, and 30 seconds) over the entire fifth term. It was found that only one member spoke the most during sessions, with a total speaking time of (5 hours, 31 minutes, and 12 seconds). Subsequently, the speaking times decrease proportionally, reaching a member who did not make any speech.

Recommendations

1. For a Strong Parliament: Voters should strive to select the best candidates from various lists and vote for them. Their voting should be based on competence and integrity, not on emotions, affiliations, party loyalty, tribalism, or nepotism.

2. Candidate Commitment: Those candidates chosen by political parties should, upon being elected, return to the parliament and not participate in the process solely to gather votes.

3. Pre-Election Training: Political parties should conduct training sessions for their candidates before the elections, coaching and preparing them. This ensures that inexperienced parliamentarians do not take seats in the parliament. It has been observed that when candidates enter the parliament without training, preparation, and expertise, they later prove unprepared for the responsibilities. We have many examples of this from specialized organizations in this field, where parliamentarians have not fulfilled their roles effectively.

4. Post-Election Training: After the election results are announced, political parties should also provide training for the elected candidates.

5. Accountability: Parliamentarians must understand that when they take the constitutional oath, they are under the scrutiny of their voters and civil society organizations. Their actions are monitored, so they must uphold the promises made to the citizens. If they do not see themselves as capable, they should not enter the process.

6. Transforming Parliament's Role: The parliament, as a high political and legislative center where political parties play a role, should be transformed from a party headquarters into a decisive legal and political center. This requires political parties to nominate strong and decisive individuals during the elections and send them to the parliament.

7. Shifting Focus from Privilege to Duty: The parliament should shift from being a center of privilege and benefits to a center for performing duties and public service. This can be achieved if the parliament takes the initiative to reduce the salaries of parliamentarians to be similar to those of retired parliamentarians. The current salaries were set during a time when the region's economy was strong. Now, given the economic situation, these salaries are a burden on the budget and are excessive. This high salary has also led political parties to view parliamentary positions as privileges rather than duties. When this changes, political parties will nominate candidates dedicated to public service, not personal gain.
